LOGLINE

A man in a downward spiral has a one-night stand with a woman whose life quietly falls apart in his wake and ends — and the town, the guilt, and something older than either start collecting.

THE FILM

Nobody Leaves operates as guilt architecture first, horror mechanics second. The inciting event is not a haunting — it is consequence. A man who cannot outrun what his carelessness cost someone discovers that the town has a memory longer than his denial. Hereditary taught us to break the audience's heart before we're allowed to scare them. This script follows that logic exactly.
